HH Arvind Singh Mewar

CMD HRH Group Of Hotels

A graduate of Mayo College, Ajmer, HH Arvind Singh Mewar did a hotel management course in the UK and then went on to Chicago, US, where he even washed dishes, changed linen and served guests. He is now managing trustee for the Maharana Mewar Charitable Foundation and chairman and managing director of the HRH Group of Hotels. Both these organisations were established by his father HRH Bhagwat Singh Mewar who, after Independence, focused on the preservation of old forts and palaces and converting them into heritage hotels. However, the present face of HRH is thanks to Shriji, as he is fondly called by all, as he is responsible for not only bringing all properties under the HRH banner, but also making them profitable. Today, the group manages about four grand heritage hotel and six royal retreat in Rajasthan, and plans to venture into new markets. "Korea or may be Japan," says the royal prince and closet cook, whose other passion is popularising Mewari cuisine.
